PARTY MEMBERS TO INTENSIFY POLITICAL STUDIES

CHERVENKO REPORTS ON ISSUES FACING PARTY -- Sofia Rabotnichesko Delo, 4 Sep 50

The problems of organization and propaganda within the Bulgarian Communist Party must become a subject of careful study and analysis for all party members. In his speech at the Third Party Congress, Yulko Chervenkov gave a substantial report on the important issues facing the party at present, such as its social structure, cadres, and the political training of members. He also stated that the work methods of party leadership, from the Central Committee down to the primary organizations; the party's activity in industry, transportation, and agriculture; and the struggle for strengthening people's soviets and the entire government apparatus must also be revised and surveyed.

The core of Chervenkov's report was the call for the strengthening and tightening of subordinate party organizations to make them independent and active organs. The party line should be strictly upheld in every local unit. The careful study of the report will greatly aid the education of party members and increase their ability to lead the masses and organize their work. Therefore, the meeting decided to direct the okrug, okoliya and municipal party committees to study and analyze the report and to provide for the practical application of its conclusions.

In the past, many party meetings have been of a purely formal nature. This must be corrected by observing the actual experience of subordinate and primary organizations, and eliminating their weaknesses and shortcomings. Criticism and self-criticism must be consistently practised by every party member.
